

Criminal Law. With a Twist.
“That’s the story. Here’s the law.”

ABOUT

Kat Mullin — known online as The Lit Litigator™ — is a criminal defense attorney, published trial-advocacy author, educator, national television legal analyst, and creator with 35 years of courtroom experience. The Lit Litigator translates that experience into smart, accessible legal education for a public audience — using current trials, courtroom stories, and real advocacy techniques to explain not simply what the law says, but how lawyers actually use it. This is not generic legal education, internet legal advice, or shallow myth-busting. It is courtroom judgment earned over three decades, taught behind a different kind of bar.

AUDIENCE

Smart, curious adults drawn to crime, trials, constitutional rights, courtroom strategy, and the legal stories shaping public conversation. The audience includes both legal professionals and sophisticated non-lawyers who come for clarity, judgment, and practical insight — not sensationalism. They are highly engaged with the content, frequently saving, sharing, discussing, and applying what they learn. The result is a trust-based audience built around expertise, curiosity, and credibility rather than entertainment alone.

THE FOUR CONTENT PILLARS – ALL SERVED WITH A TWIST

- Cops, Questions & Searches — what your rights actually are when law enforcement gets involved
- Inside the Courtroom — what really happens at trial, using real cases to teach the strategy behind the headlines.
- The Law You Think You Know — the legal rule everyone gets wrong
- Courtroom Skills for Real Life — 35 years of courtroom lessons, applied anywhere

FORMAT & VOICE

- Short-form video (30–120 sec): Sidebars, Main Episodes, and Litigator's Lounge storytelling
- Signature visual identity: distinctive cat-eye eyewear worn in every Lit Litigator video since launch
- Signature setting: courtroom teaching and storytelling delivered from a distinctive bar-inspired set, with cocktails and wine incorporated as recurring visual and narrative elements
- Signature sign-off: “Court is adjourned for today. I’ll see you back at the bar.”
- Consistent posting across Instagram and TikTok under @TheLitLitigator
- Voice: confident, conversational, courtroom-tested — no legalese

EDUCATION & BRAND PARTNERSHIPS

Education comes first. The Lit Litigator works selectively with brands that can integrate naturally into the existing content without displacing its educational purpose or compromising the professional reputation behind it.

Potential integrations include:

- Native product placement within existing short-form educational content
- Recurring-series integration within storytelling formats such as Last Call with Kat
- Signature visual partnerships involving eyewear, barware, glassware, wine, spirits, and other naturally aligned products
- Live-event and educational partnerships as The Lit Litigator expands into in-person trial-advocacy programming

Partnerships are developed individually to fit both brands — never as generic sponsored content.

FEATURED MEDIA

Chaz & AJ in the Morning / WPLR — Featured Legal Expert

"Kat, 'The Lit Litigator,' Breaking Down the Clancy Trial"

Invited legal expert discussing trial strategy, cross-examination, and the defense's handling of medical witnesses in the Lindsay Clancy trial. The segment was subsequently published as a standalone Pod Pick by the show.
